The Farmer's Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washings and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every taint or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the relief of the above symptoms are the leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

SPECTACULAR MARINE PAGEANT OF ALL NATIONS AT NORFOLK

In Spotless Array Uncle Sam's Great Armada Awaits in Hampton Roads the Foreign Guests of the Jamestown Ter-Centennial Exposition.

Norfolk, Va. — Americans have turned from thoughts of the International Peace Conference to the most splendid international war spectacle this country and probably the world has ever seen. The Jamestown Ter-Centennial Exposition, the newest world's fair, will be "a military, naval, marine and historic exhibition," according to the official statements. History will be given its due at the Exposition as well as the arts of peace, but the distinctive feature will be the sight of Hampton Roads—already a famous naval arena—alive with the fighting craft of many nations, the shores glittering with soldiers in friendly rendezvous.

The remarkable naval display is made possible by the fact that the Jamestown Exposition is the first great American fair held on a deep-water harbor. Practically all the civilized nations have accepted the President's invitation to send sections of their navies. As the summer advances the varying types of fighting craft, from saucy torpedo boats to the largest war vessel afloat, will pass through the harbor in endless procession. The United States Government will have an extensive display, showing the evolution of guns and fighting ships from the early days of the Nation to the present. There will also be a large encampment of militia, regular army and foreign troops.

There are twenty-five battleships and cruisers in the line headed by the Connecticut just off the Government pier at Fort Monroe, which trails away up the broad channel leading to Norfolk. The vessels are anchored several thousand yards off the Exposition shore, and arranged in a huge semicircle, are visible from every part of the grounds.

Every type of fighting craft in the American navy is represented in the present rendezvous. The battleships range from the 16,000 ton Connecticut and Louisiana down to the all but abandoned Texas, the oldest American battleship and sister of the Maine, which was wrecked in Havana harbor.

The Texas was built at the Norfolk navy yard many years ago, and being a local product, is to remain at the Exposition as a permanent feature of the naval exhibit. With her eight guns and paltry 6315 tons of weight the Texas, when ranged alongside the mammoth Connecticut, which mounts twenty-four guns and displaces 19,000 tons of water, offers a striking example of the progress of the American navy since the days of 1880, when the Texas and the first Maine were authorized by Congress.

The Brooklyn, bearing on her after turret the memorial plate simply and eloquently inscribed "July 2, 1898," will also remain a permanent naval exhibit during the seven months of the life of the Exposition.

The cruisers of the fleet are all modern craft, though the variance in size between the largest and the smallest is as great as that which marks the heavier vessels of the battle class.

The armored cruisers Tennessee and Washington, each of 14,500 tons and mounting twenty guns apiece, are the heaviest of the cruisers. The smallest cruisers are the Denver and the Cleveland—3100 tons each—the third class of the protected vessels of the navy. In the cruiser class the most interesting vessel is perhaps the Brooklyn, the flagship of Rear-Admiral Schley in the battle with Cervera's squadron off Santiago, Cuba.

The fleet has been arranged so as to give the visitors to the Exposition the best possible opportunity for viewing the fighting strength of the American navy. The glistening white hulls, spotted in their new coats of paint, and the buff superstructures of the two and three piped line-of-battle ships and armored and protected cruisers, form a marine panorama as viewed from the water front esplanade of the Exposition grounds such as has seldom, if ever, before been presented to the American public.

The Navy Department has prepared a list of the foreign vessels to be in Hampton Roads.

Toulon Arsenal Fire.

Five large buildings were destroyed by the fire, alleged to be incendiary, at the Toulon (France) arsenal. Thirty men were injured and the submarine and torpedo stations were damaged.

Weather Unfavorable.

Cold weather has prevailed over an unusually large area, retarding agricultural progress as well as trade in light weight wearing apparel and other spring goods.

The British fleet will consist of four armed cruisers—the Good Hope, Argyle, Hampshire and Roxburgh, under the command of a Rear-Admiral.

The German fleet will consist of the armored cruiser Roon and the protected cruiser Bremen, under the command of a Commodore.

The Austrian ships will consist of the armored cruiser Sankt Georg and the protected cruiser Aspern, under the command of a Commodore, who will be promoted to be a Rear-Admiral.

The Brazilian fleet, under a Rear-Admiral, consists of the battleship Riachuelo, the cruiser Barroso and the gun vessel Tamoyo. The Brazilian fleet will be the only foreign one containing a battleship.

The Argentine Republic will send the training ship Presidente Sarmiento under the command of a commander.

The Japanese fleet, in command of a Vice-Admiral, will consist of the armored cruiser Tsuruma and the protected cruiser Chitose.

It is noticeable that while Japan sends some of her finest warships to represent her navy, and one of her foremost generals, the Russian Government will not be represented by a single ship, nor is it known that any officer of her army will come here.

The other foreign countries to be represented will be France, Italy, Chile and Portugal.

Italy will send two vessels in command of a captain, the armored cruiser Varese and the protected cruiser Etruria. Chile will send the protected cruiser Ministro Zenteno under the command of a captain, while Portugal will send a protected cruiser, probably the Don Carlos. Spain has not signified her intentions of sending any war vessels.

The entertainment committee of the fleet is now arranging a water polo match, and on the request of the fleet has been asked to provide a float for the occasion. The pageant will be on some evening yet to be determined. Several ships have already decided on the floats they will send. Three will send three of their cutters to represent the three old-time craft which brought the Pilgrims to Jamestown.

Another float will represent the Great Harry, a renowned ship of war of that period, and on the request of the Admiral the Navy Department is now searching the archives to know just what the vessel was like. Then there will be pirate ships, galleons, a float showing Neptune and his trident and much else besides. During the carnival the ships will be illuminated, and there will be a hundred searchlights plying over the brilliant scene.

Aside from such diversions the strong armada will have little to do in the waiting days. The ships long ago completed their toilets and are so spic and span they hurt the eye. No where is there an atoning blemish. It is all spotless buff and white, touched off here and there with the glint of polished steel and the shimmer of shining brass.

From the flagship definite announcement came that the fleet will disperse on May 15. Two divisions will then go to sea for maneuvering purposes, one division will go to navy yards for such minor repairs as may be needed, and one division will remain here until relieved by one of the divisions coming in from manoeuvres. The four divisions, sixteen battleships in all, are to reassemble here on June 10, set apart as Georgia Day, when there will be a celebration in honor of the birthday of the mother of President Roosevelt.

As the foreign ships arrive they are officially welcomed by a boom of cannon from the Connecticut, the flagship of Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans, commanding the Atlantic fleet. All the American vessels now at anchor belong to this fleet.

The unique feature of the Exposition will be the harbor for small craft, with an area of 1,280,000 square feet, inclosed by piers, costing the United States Government $400,000.

MARVIN MURDER THEORY

Farm Hand Suspected of Causing Missing Delaware Lad's Death.

Search For Kidnapers Abandoned—Body May Have Been in Bag Carried Away.

Dover, Del. — Through a statement made to Detective Frank H. Lore, of New Jersey, by Horace Caldwell, a farm hand, of Kitts Hammock, Frank H. Butler, who is now locked up in the Dover jail, is charged with the murder of Horace N. Marvin, Jr., the four-year-old son of Dr. H. N. Marvin, who disappeared mysteriously from Bay Meadows, the Marvin farm, on the morning of March 4.

Butler, who was a farm hand employed by Charles Woodall, the man who sold Bay Meadows to Dr. Marvin, was the last person known to have seen the Marvin lad. Suspicion has been directed against him for several weeks.

Butler a few weeks ago obtained a job as deckhand on the steamer John P. Wilson, of the Dover and Philadelphia Navigation Company.

Lore, Lorenzo D. Woodruff and James Hawkins, State detective, of Delaware, went to Philadelphia and boarded the steamer John P. Wilson, which was about to start for Lebanon.

After the vessel reached Delaware waters at the mouth of Jones River, Butler was served with a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace E. F. Wood and sworn to by Detective Hawkins. He took his arrest coolly. During the next three hours, up to the time the vessel docked at Lebanon, Butler was put through a sweating process by the detectives.

Butler denies knowledge of the disappearance of the child and reiterates that the boy was sitting on a haystack on the Marvin farm when he and several other men, who were moving the effects of the former owner of the land, left the place. Butler, Caldwell says, was ordered to go to the barn and load up wheat screenings in bags. This he did, and when Caldwell later entered the barn he found that Butler had loaded three bags into a wagon and a fourth was lying on the floor of the barn. Caldwell says he lifted this bag into the wagon himself and found it heavy, although Butler had said it was filled with corks such as are used by fishermen for nets. This bag, Caldwell says, disappeared. Acting on the theory that this bag contained the body of the child the detectives decided to charge Butler with murder.

It is the theory of Lore and Hawkins that Butler accidentally ran over the boy, and, rather than take the dead body to the house, concealed it in a sack of corks and removed it to the woods, a mile and a half from the Marvin farm, where he buried it.

ONE RHODE ISLAND SENATOR.

Legislature Adjourns With the Dead-End Unbroken.

Providence, R. I. — Despite the pressure brought to bear by the Republican organization, the Rhode Island Legislature adjourned without having elected a Senator to succeed George Peabody Wetmore. Only one vote was changed by the final efforts of the party leaders, and on the eighty-first and last ballot the vote stood: Colonel R. H. I. Goddard (Providence, Democrat), 41; Colonel Samuel Pomeroy Colt, Bristol, (Republican), 39; George Peabody Wetmore, Newport, (Republican), 30. Thus until the Legislature meets next January Rhode Island will have only Senator Aldrich in the upper house of Congress.

SLAIN ON WEDDING EVE.

Belle Stroup Larres Ross, Shoots Him and Commits Suicide.

Oil City, Pa. — While discussing with his family at the dinner table plans for his wedding that night to Miss Edith D. Sampsell, Thaddeus Stevens Ross received a call to the telephone. He left the house, saying he would return soon.

He was found dead an hour later in the office of a prominent physician, with the body of Miss Belle Stroup, a former sweetheart, lying at his feet.

Miss Stroup was twenty-eight and Ross thirty-five. He was a postoffice employee and a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

Miss Sampsell, the bride-elect, is well high graced with grief.

VILLAGE JUSTICE A SUICIDE.

Found by Wife at Other Woman's Door, Gardner Shoots Himself.

Paterston, N. J. — When confronted by his wife, Frederick W. Gardner, a wealthy resident of Ridgewood and Justice of the Peace, shot and instantly killed himself at the door of the home of Mrs. Benjamin Eglin, the young wife of the village blacksmith.

Gardner acted as Justice of the Peace and Town Collector, not because he desired revenue from those offices, but because he had a hobby of serving as a public official. His father, who died several years ago, left him a fortune. He was fifty years old. He leaves a widow and a fourteen-year-old daughter.

Pe-ru-na Relieves Spring Catarrh.

MISS DORA HAYDEN.

"Without hesitation I write to thank you for the great relief I have found in your valuable medicine, Peruna, and will call the attention of all my friends suffering with catarrh to that fact. Besides I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering with catarrh in any form."—Miss Dora Hayden, 819 6th St., S. W., Washington, D. C.

A Case of Spring Catarrh.

Mrs. N. P. Lawler, 423 1/2 N. Broadway, Pittsburg, Kas., writes: "Last spring I caught a severe cold, which developed into a serious case of catarrh. I felt weak and sick, and could neither eat nor sleep well. A member of our club who had been cured of catarrh through the use of Peruna advised me to try it, and I did so at once. I expected help, but nothing like the wonderful change for the better I observed almost as soon as I started taking it. In three days I felt much better, and within two weeks I was in fine health. Peruna is a wonderful medicine."

The Grippe.

An ache in the back, and a pain in the head—
That's the grippe!
A choke in the throat, and a yearning for bed—
That's the grippe!
A river of heat, then a shiver of cold, A feeling of being three hundred years old, A willingness even to do as you're told—
That's the grippe!

An arrow of pain, now in this place, now that—
That's the grippe!
A feeling of doubt as to where you are at—
That's the grippe!
A stupid sensation—of course, wholly new!
A foolish depression—why should you feel blue?—
A doubt as to whether this really is you—
That's the grippe!
Strange visions at night, that deprive you of rest—
That's the grippe!
A taste in your mouth, and a weight on your chest—
That's the grippe!
A tired sensation that runs through your veins, A queer combination of aches and of pains,
That's the grippe!
—Somerville Journal.

It is Cruel to the Child.

The practice of "forcing" a young child's musical talents, Moriz Rosenthal, the well-known pianist, unhesitatingly condemns. "It is a great injustice to the public to foist a child's undeveloped talents upon him, but it is a far greater injustice to the child. There is nothing so inherently poetic as an imaginative child, and one who is musically inclined is apt to be imaginative. If you put him upon the stage before he has attained his mental equilibrium you are running the danger of making him self-conscious theatrical, and of stunting in him the development of a quality which as a musician he is lost without. But Gott sie dank, the custom is a passing one."—From "Little Glimpses of Famous Musicians," by C. F. Peter, in The Bohemian for May.

Trees For Small Lawns.

I have been asked to give a list of trees of medium size suitable for planting on small lots. I would name: Cut-leaved birch, mountain ash, purple-leaved beech, the flowering crab, and cornus florida, or white-flowered dogwood. The best evergreens for general lawn use are the three spruces, Colorado blue, Norway, and hemlock.—From "The Making of a Country Home," by Eben E. Rexford in The Outing Magazine for May.

Not Discouraged.

"Can't you realize that you're merely wasting my time and your own?" complained the busy merchant.

"Why so?" asked the agent.

"I told you some time ago that I was insured to the limit."

"I know you did, but a man will say most anything to get rid of an insurance man."
